THE ONLOOKER WILBUR D. NESBIT.

THE SONG

From the cage there comes a strain
Full of mingled joy and pain—
Tears and laughter, sighs and smiles,
Echoing the bygone whistles;
And the song goes on until
We catch words that softly thrill
Through the music of the bird
As a shadow of each word.

Listen! Hear it sing
Of trees, and of drifting winds that seize
Nodding blossoms as they run
Heralding the rising sun;
Hear it sing of winds that shake
Jeweled waves upon the lake,
And of wondrous blossom-tang
Where the wild grapes clutch and hang.

And it tells us more and more
In its notes that rise
and soar

As though they would find the goal
Kept from this imprisoned soul.
Faint and fine the music now,
Rising, falling, as a bough
Rocked upon a zephyr's breast,
Swinging thus a cradle-nest.

So it sings of night and morn,
Of the very and the thorn,
Of the wild, wild sweeps of sea,
Of the clover and the bow,
Of the mystic woodland hush
Where the fairies romp and rush
Through the mazes of their dance
In their olden necromance.

What? You hear it not? Ah, well,
Thus we break the dreaming spell
That made it both sweet and strong—
Sunshine sparkling into song.
And so dies each living note
In the little songster's throat.

This, assuredly this I heard:
"I remember!" sang the bird.

OLD MAN GIDDLES OBSERVES.

If it isn't a man who wants to tell you that he takes a cold bath every morning it is one who insists on telling you he eats two apples every night at bedtime.

Most of us expect our friends to be honest, except when it comes to our personal characteristics.

Erna Timmons calls himself a patriot, but that isn't any excuse for his waking people up in the middle of the night to tell them what he would do with Cuba.

Mrs. Luke Podmore has ordered her winter dress made with short sleeves, but she is worried to death because Luke won't begin wearing his fall overcoat already.

There are men who brag about their poor memories.

I read a magazine clear through the other night, advertisements and all, and then sat for an hour trying to think what was peculiar about it. At last I figured it out; nothing had been exposed in that issue.

When a woman marries a man to reform him she may as well count on being a reformer the rest of her life.

When a woman who does her own cooking reads a story in which the heroine bosses four or five maids about she begins to think that her husband doesn't love her as he should.

Drawing the Line.

"Doctor," says the lawyer, "will you kindly examine the defendant, who is seated within two feet of you, and tell the jury whether in your opinion he—"

"Sir!" haughtily interrupts the eminent expert. "I will examine any and all hypothetical questions you may wish to ask, but I wish to inform you that what you suggest is in the highest degree unethical. No, sir! I cannot do it."

A Spree in the Coopage.

The keg was gayly rolling across the cooper's floor, the cask was trying vainly to edge in through the door. The housewife vowed 'twas easy to do the loop-the-loop, the barrel sang a merry stave that ended with a hoop. The crowd was soon arrested and flung into the jail—the friend, the water bucket was shortly giving bail.

The Wretch.

"You have deceived me!" sighs the trusting wife.

"I? Deceived you? How?" demands the surprised husband.

"You have been telling me the truth about where you spend your evenings."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefits to be derived from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. John G. Moldan, 2115 Second St. North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.
